

Episode 27 Downloadable: Post NEVI Plan... Where Are They Now?

What has the NEVI plan done, and what can we expect it to do in the future?

The National Electric Vehicle Infrastructure (NEVI) program has provided $5 billion in funds to build out a national network of alternative fuel corridors with adequate electric charging stations positioned along them. So far, all states have submitted their plans for using the funds, and some have broken ground on building NEVI-funded stations. Planners can look forward to siting these stations, helping to design the direct and indirect infrastructure needed, and anticipating and planning for traffic patterns nearby.
